

Developing the next generation to respond to those in conflict.

CREIGHTON UNIVERSITY - WERNER INSTITUTE

Conflict exists. Between individuals. Within families. In our homes and in our workplaces. In our local communities and in the world at large. Conflict is often seen as a negative. The Werner Institute believes in looking at conflict and asking, “How can we productively engage in conflict to inspire innovation and creativity?”

Program Goals:

Integrating applied and scholarly approaches provide students with the ability to.

- Communicate effectively;
- Define and apply conflict engagement in different processes (Negotiation, Facilitation, Mediation).
- Practical skills in understanding and engaging in conflict situations in constructive manners.
- Engage and demonstrate creative problem solving and critical thinking.
- Practice reflective professional development with Ignatian values alignment.
- Apply technology to conflict engagement processes.
- Collaborate effectively across diverse groups of race, ethnicity, culture, gender, religion, and sexual orientation.

Mission:

The Masters in Negotiation and Conflict Resolution is designed to prepare students to assume leadership positions in the field of conflict studies. The Werner Institute teaches individuals how to engage conflict and resolve disputes effectively, efficiently, and humanely. The mission is consistent with the Jesuit Catholic tradition of social justice, responsible leadership, and professional distinction. To advance its goals, The Werner Institute assists organizations with the design of conflict management systems, offers professional development programs, workshops, custom designed trainings, graduate certification programs, and provides an interdisciplinary program leading to a master's degree in negotiation and conflict resolution (offered both, in a campus-based and a hybrid modality – online with two intensive campus visits).
